Sigma Machine Takes 21,664 Square Feet in Midlink's Newest Manufacturing Space with Flexibility to Expand up to 74,000 Square Feet

COMSTOCK TOWNSHIP, MICHIGAN (October 10, 2012)— Midlink Business Park welcomes Sigma Machine to the park's newest state-of-the-art manufacturing space at 3358 Center Park Plaza. The stainless-steel and aluminum machining manufacturer company, founded in 1960 and family owned, specializes in small- to medium-sized machine components for the medical equipment, green energy, custom tooling, and automotive industries. The company will be occupying 21,664 square feet at the new address and is moving to Midlink to accommodate ongoing business growth.

"We created a space that's perfect for Sigma," said Midlink President David Smith, referring to the work that was completed on the northeast corner of Midlink West earlier this year. Building enhancements added a private entry, parking lot, new landscaping, an additional truck dock and overhead door, and 2,800 square feet of modern offices. "The space is designed for a user who needs up to 74,000 square feet—so Sigma can feel at home today, yet have the room to expand as their business expands." Smith continued.

Offering tenants, like Sigma, this kind of flexibility has been a major attraction of the business park, according to Smith. "We look forward to seeing our tenants succeed here. Helping them achieve seamless growth is one of our unique strengths."

Plenty of other unique benefits come packaged with the world-class manufacturing space at 3358 Center Park Plaza. High-capacity infrastructure for manufacturing and distribution, a dynamic Midwest location, plus significant tax-free Renaissance Zone savings and other incentives—all continue to lure new tenants to Midlink while encouraging existing tenants to broaden their operations at the park.

"We're thrilled to have Sigma at Midlink," Smith concluded. "The company is a valued addition to the park and their continued growth and success will benefit the entire community."
